I-90 bridge closures this week for Blue Angels, no connection from I-5 during closures

This week prepare to take alternate routes if you take I-90 from I-5. We are closing the I-90 bridge across Lake Washington in both directions several times between today and Sunday for the Blue Angels air shows and practices. The I-5 on ramps to I-90 will also be closed. The closure ensures safety for drivers and the pilots during the annual event.

I-90 will be closed to all vehicles, pedestrians and cyclists, eastbound and westbound, mainline and express lanes, between Interstate 5 in Seattle and Island Crest Way on Mercer Island. I-90 east of Mercer Island will NOT be closed during the performance, although drivers should note that heavy congestion during these closures often restricts access to the exits.

Crews busy making safety upgrades on busy I-5 – give ‘em a brake

Our contractors are hard at work this summer bringing seven bridges over I-5 up to current earthquake standards. Crews are currently working in the median of I-5 in north Seattle. Tonight and tomorrow night workers will close the left lane on I-5 in both directions and an express lane overnight between NE 50th Street and N 200th Street. When you see WSDOT trucks, orange lights and signs please watch for crews working near the highway and be prepared to slow down.
